Chauvin Chautauqua November 11-13-14-15

The dance Committee have arranged to hold a dance on the last evening of the Chautauqua. Dancing will be from 10.30 to 3 o'clock. Nellie Pawsey and her Gypsies will supply first class music. Admission: Gents 75. Ladies Free.

Preparations for Convenience of Patrons

With the prospect of cold weather during the Chautauqua this year the Committee are taking steps to make a supply of hot water available for those coming in cars. This will avoid the inconvenience and worry of keeping your car warm during the programs.

Chautauquas Offers Excellent Programs

Wonderful Array of Talent at the Chautauqua Here Nov. 11 to 15

Chautauqua opens in Chauvin this year with a spirited musical program by the Deep River Plantation Singers which people of the district will not want to miss. The series presents a variety of other interesting and equally talented artists for the three succeeding days. The Chautauqua will be held on November 11, 13-14-15 in the Royal Theatre.

On the evening of the second day the play "Sun-Up" will be given. This is one of the best dramatic productions ever to be staged by the Chautauquas here. It is an intense drama which grips the emotions and holds the interest as no other drama of recent times has done.

The third day will prove a delight to music lovers. The Lombards, famous radio artists bring in a realistic manner an afternoon of musical excellence with costumes and stage settings. Harry Lombard, baritone soloist and clever comedian has gained an enviable reputation in musical comedy and on the operatic stage, while Lela Fairchild Lombard is a versatile artist, with readings, planologues, whistling solos and a variety of other numbers.

The Lombards will also appear in the evening when they will give a prelude to the scintillating and vivid address by Major Norman Allan Imrie. Major Imrie, because of his fine historical background, keen mentality and platform eloquence has the charming faculty of lighting up his addresses with a delicious humour. In his address "A sign in the Sky" will be found a wealth of inspiration.

The closing day of the series is a popular one with children, both young and old, for does it not mark the return of Sue Hastings delightful little company of entertainers? This year however she is sending entirely new players and stories. "Jack and the Bean Stalk" never fails to pique the imagination of story lovers.

MRS. HENRY NICKEL DIED WHILE ON HOLIDAY IN CITY

The sad death occurred recently of Mary Nickel, wife of Mr. H. Nickel who is a pioneer of this district and has been for many years a resident of the Greenglade district.

Mrs. Nickel, who had reached the age of 51 years at the time of her death, had not been the best of health, but her death came as quite a surprise and shock to her many friends. She succumbed to an attack of heart failure.

Mrs. Nickel had resided in the district for eighteen years. She leaves no children.

She had been in Edmonton for a short time previous to her death and had been taking treatment from Dr. Kelly. One night her husband was awakened by her strained breathing, and immediately called a doctor, but before he could arrive she had passed away.

The body was brought to Provost where funeral services were held in the United church. Rev. Hart of the United church at Provost conducted the services and was assisted by Rev. A. E. Thompson of Stainsleigh. Interment took place in the Provost cemetery.

Mrs. Nickel was quiet, and somewhat retiring and had won for herself the respect and love of the people of the district by her many acts of kindness and friendship. She was for a number of years a trustee on the board of the Greenglade school, which was located on their farm, and in her respect the school was closed for the day of her funeral.

Messrs. R. Beatty, Al. Risely, S. Naylor, H. Gillespie, J. Taylor and Tom Russell, acted as pall-bearers.

The services were attended by practically the whole community who wished to show their respect of the deceased lady and their sincere sympathy to Mr. Nickel.

COMMUNITY HALL BEING ERECTED AT MARSDEN

Within about a month Marsden hopes to boast of a fine new Community Hall, 30 by 60 feet, and floored with maple hardwood flooring. This building, the foundation for which has already been laid, is the culmination of a long period of efforts on the part of various organizations in Marsden, and promises to amply repay them for their efforts.

The new building is located on Main street, just south of the Municipal office.

Construction work will be mostly carried on by volunteer labor under the direction of a qualified carpenter. Jim Loy, as chairman of the building committee has supervision of building arrangements.

AUCTION SALE OF COMPLETE FARM AND HOUSE EQUIPMENT

A large range of Farm Stock, Machinery, Household Goods, Harness, Poultry, Feed and Etc. will be offered for sale at the farm of L. McLellan, 1 mile North of Butze, on Wednesday November 22nd. Terms are cash. The sale is billed to commence at 12:30. A lunch will be served at 11:30. Geo. Reynolds is the Auctioneer.

The reduction in the number of seats came into effect with a bill passed since the last election in 1928 reducing the number of seats in the House to 47.

Sweeping to power with an even greater majority than they enjoyed previous to the preceding election, the Liberal Party of B.C. vanquished all opposition in a spectacular manner at the provincial election held in Thursday last, November 2nd. Ex-Premier Tomlie, cons. was defeated in his own constituency, and the only opposing party to gain more than one seat was the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation who were successful in obtaining six seats out of the forty seven.

This, following the election of three Liberals at bye-election in the Dominion during the past few weeks is considered as indicative of the general swing of political thought which will evince itself in the results of the forthcoming Federal elections.

Items of Interest

Mr. and Mrs. E. Davignon of Wainwright were visitors to Chauvin yesterday.

Rev. J. F. Minor Simpson, who recently had charge of the Presbyterian field here stopped off on his return trip to the States to visit with friends here. Rev. Simpson has had charge of the Ft. St. John field since leaving here. He is forced to discontinue work for a period due to ill health.

Susan Shultz, the crippled girl whose name was formerly given through this paper as Rosie Shultz, left a few days ago for Montreal where she will receive further treatment.

Mr. J. Calder left on Monday evening for the seaboard where he will board the "Ausonia" bound for the Great Britain. He is taking a trip home to visit friends and relatives.

INTERESTING POOL MEETINGS ARE HELD THROUGH DISTRICT

During last week a number of interesting meetings of Wheat Pool signors were held throughout the district, and were addressed by Mr. G. B. Nelson, Field Service Man, Director Geo. Bennett, who is a member of the Grain standards Board and H. Foreman, delegate for this district.

Though the attendance were not large the meetings were very instructive and those present showed great interest in the work. The address given by Mr. Bennett and Mr. Nelson were particularly of interest.

A point of interest is that Mr. Nelson holds the world's record for grain handling, having taken in 100,000 bushels of grain in ten days, when operating one of the Alberta Pool Co's elevators located at Coleman, Alberta a few years ago. Of this 100,000 he handled 63,000 in three days. During this time he had his grain cleaner running continuously, and in all the customers he served there was not one complaint as to grading or otherwise.

In his address Mr. Bennett dealt with the matter of control of production and explained the plan under which the international wheat agreement operated. He stated that he believed that control would be necessary and believed that the reduction proposed by the agreement, viz: a reduction of fifteen per cent from average yield that would be expected from the acreage in crop this year to be effective next season. In cases where crops have been continuously bad for some time the average would be taken from the years in which better yields had been expedient.

It was explained that the fact that European countries especially France and Germany having wheat to export was not an uncommon thing and did not have the apparent result that our wheat would not be needed in these countries. These countries need Canadian wheat to mix with the home raised product in order to give a good flour. It is for this reason that the maintenance of a high standard of wheat in Canada was essential to our holding markets in these countries. In connection with the maintaining of the quality of Canadian wheat it was pointed out that the large percentage of Garnet which is now being received at elevators was having a noticeable detrimental effect on sales and prices.

To a large extent, it was pointed out, this has been responsible for the lower prices which are offered at Vancouver than at the Lakes, for while wheat delivered at the head of the Lakes contained an average of from 10 to 20 per cent of Garnet, wheat delivered at Vancouver averaged from 40 to 80 per cent.

"The Illustrious Prince"

Bransome leaned forward in his chair.

"I can disprove it," he declared firmly. "Come with me to Aldershot next week, and I will show you that those who say that we have no army are ignorant alarmists. The Secretary for War will show you our new scheme for defensive forces. You have gone to the wrong authorities for information on these matters, Prince. You have been entirely and totally misled."

"Sir Edward," he said, "I do not speak to you rashly, I have not looked into these affairs as an amateur. You forget that I have spent a week at Aldershot, and that your Secretary for War gave me two days of his valuable time. Every figure with which you could furnish me I am already possessed of. I will be frank with you. What I saw at Aldershot counted for nothing with me in my decision. Your standing army is good, beyond a doubt—a well-trained machine, an excellent plaything for a General to move across the chess-board. It might even win battles, and yet, your standing army are mercenaries, and no great nation, from the days of Babylon, has resisted invasion or held an empire by her mercenaries."

They are English soldiers," Mr. Haviland declared. "I do not recognize your use of the word."

"They are paid soldiers," the Prince said, "men who have adopted soldiering as a profession. Come, I will not pause half way. I will tell you what is wrong with your country. You will not believe it. Some day you will see the truth, and you will remember my words. It may be that you will realize it a little sooner, or I would not have dared to speak as I am speaking. This, then is the curse which is eating the heart out of our very existence. The love of his Motherland is no longer a religion, with your young men. Let me repeat that—I will alter one word only. The love of his Motherland is no longer the religion or even part of the religion of your young men. Soldiering is a profession for those who embrace it. It is so that mercenaries are made. I have been to every one of your great cities in the north. I have been there on a

Saturday afternoon—the national holiday. That is the day in Japan on which our young men march and learn to shoot, form companies and attend to their drill. Feast days and holidays it is always the same. They do what tradition has made a necessity for them. They do it without grumbling, wholeheartedly, with an enthusiasm which has in it something almost of passion. How do I find the youth of your country engaged? I have discovered. It is for that purpose that I have toured through England. They go to see a game played called football. They sit on seats and smoke and shout. They watch a score of performers—one score, mind—and the numbers who watch them are millions. From town to town I went, and it was always the same. I see their white faces in a huge amphitheatre, fifteen thousand here, twenty thousand there, thirty thousand at another place. They watch and they shout whilst these men in the arena play with great skill this wonderful game. When the match is over they stream into public-houses. Their afternoon has been spent. They talk it over. Again they smoke and drink. So it is in one town and another—so it is everywhere—the strangest sight of all that I have seen in Europe. These are your young men, the material out of which the coming generation must be fashioned! How many of them can shoot? How many of them can ride? How many of them have any sort of uniform in which they could prepare to meet the enemy of their country? What do they know or care for anything outside their little lives and what they call their love of sport, they who spend five days in your grim factories, toiling before machines, their one afternoon content to sit and watch the prowess of others! I speak to these footballers themselves. They are strong and swift. They are paid to play this game. I do not find that even one of them is competent to strike a blow for his country if she needs him. It is because of your young men, then, Mr Haviland, that I cannot advise Japan to form a new alliance with you. It is because you are not a serious people. It is because the units of your nation have ceased to understand that behind the life of every great nation stands the love of God, whatever god it may be, and the love of Motherland. These things may not be your fault. They may, indeed, be the terrible penalty of success. But no one who lives for ever so short a time amongst you can fail to see the truth. You are commercialized out of all the greatness of life. Forgive me, all of you, that I say it so plainly, but you are a race who are on the downward grade, and Japan seeks no alliance save with those whose faces are lifted to the skies."

The pause which followed was in itself significant. The Duke alone remained impassive. Bransome's face was dark with anger. Even the Prime Minister was annoyed. Bransome would have spoken, but the former held out his hand to check him.

"If that is really your opinion of us, Prince," he said, "it is useless to enter into argument with you, especially as you have already acted upon your convictions. I should like to ask you a question, though. A few weeks ago an appeal was made to our young men to bring up to its full strength certain forces which have organized for the defence of the country. Do you know how many recruits we obtained in less than a month?"

"Fourteen thousand, four hundred and seventy-five," the Prince answered promptly. "out of nearly seven millions who were eligible. This pitiful result, in itself, might have been included amongst my arguments if I had felt that arguments were necessary. Mr. Haviland, you may drive some of these you men to arms by persuasion, by appealing to them through their women kind and their employers, but you cannot create a national spirit. And I tell you, and I have proved it, that the national spirit is not there. I will go further," the Prince continued, with increased earnestness, "if you still are not weary of the subject. I will point out to you how little encouragement the youth of this country receive from those who are above them in social station. In every one of your counties there is a hunt, cricket clubs, golf clubs in such numbers that their statistics absolutely overwhelm me. Everywhere one meets young men at leisure, well-off, calmly proposing to settle down and spend the best part of their lives in what they call country life. They will look after their estates; they will hunt a little, shoot a little, go abroad for two months in the winter, play golf a little, lawn tennis perhaps, or cricket. I tell you that there are hundreds and thousands of these young men who have no uniform which they could wear—no, I want to change that!" the Prince cried, with an impressive gesture—"who have no uniforms which they WILL be able to wear when the evil time comes! How will they feel then, these young men of family, whose life has been given to sports and idle amusements, when their womenkind come shrieking to them for protection, and they dare not even handle a gun or strike a blow! They must stand by and see their lands laid waste, their womenkind insulted. They must see the land run red with the blood of those who offer a futile resistance, but they themselves must stand by inactive. They are not trained to fight as soldiers — they cannot fight as civilians."

"The Prince forgets," Bransome remarked drily, "that an invasion of this country—a practical invasion—is very nearly an impossible thing."

"The Prince laughed softly. "My friend," he said, "if I thought that you believed that, although you are a Cabinet Minister of England I should think you were the biggest fool that ever breathed. To-day in warfare nothing is impossible. I will guarantee, I, who have had only ten years of soldiering, that if Japan were where Holland is to-day, I would halve my strength in ships and I would halve my strength in men, and I would overrun your country with ease at any time I chose. You need not agree with me, of course. It is not a subject that we need to discuss. It is perhaps out of my province to allude to it. The feeling which I have in my heart is this. The laws of history are incontrovertible. So surely as a great nation is weakened by prosperity, so that her limbs have lost their suppleness and her finger joints have stiffened, so surely does its plunderer come in good time. The nation which loses its citizen army drives the first nail in its coffin. I do not say who will invade you, or when although to my thinking anyone could do it. I simply say that, in your present state, invasion from someone or other is a sure thing."

"Without admitting the truth of a single word you have said, my dear Prince," the Prime Minister remarked "there is another aspect of the whole subject which I think that you should consider. If you find us in so parlous a state, it is surely scarcely dignified or gracious on the part of a great nation like yours, to leave us so abruptly to our fate. Supposing it were true that we were suffering a little from period of too lengthened prosperity, from an attack of over-confidence. Still think of the part we have played in the past. We we kept the world at bay while you fought the Russians."

"That," replied the Prince, was one of the conditions of a treaty which has expired. If by that treaty our country profited more than yours that is no reason why we should renew it under altered conditions. Gratitude is an admirable sentiment, but it has nothing to do with making treaties."

"We are, nevertheless," Bransome declared, "justified in pointing out to you some of the advantages which you have gained from your alliance with us. You realize, I suppose, that save for our intervention the United States would have declared war against you four months ago."

"Your good offices were duly acknowledged by my Government," the Prince admitted. "Yet what you did was in itself of no consequence. It is as sure as north is north and south is south that you and America would never quarrel over Japan. That is another reason, if another reason is needed, why a treaty between us would be valueless. You and I—the whole world—know that, before a cycle of years have passed, Japan and America must fight. When that time comes it will not be you who will help us."

"An alliance duly concluded between this country—"

The Prince held out both his hands. "Listen," he said, "A fortnight ago a certain person in America wrote and asked you in plain terms what your position would be if war between Japan and America were declared. What was the answer?"

Bransome was on the point of claiming, but the Prime Minister in-

SEVERAL BECOME MEMBERS OF CHURCH AT KILLARNEY

On October 25th a congregational meeting was held at the home of Mr. H. Foreman, Killarney District to re-organize the church in this community. A good and helpful meeting resulted in the wish of those present to carry on a week of special services. These started on Monday 30th and were continued through the week. Most inspiring and impressive addresses were given by the Rev. Hutchinson our minister who has greatly endeared himself to us all. The results of these meetings have been manifest in the coming out of so many of our people who will on Sunday join the church as members.

It has been a Holy time, a season of much heartsearching and much rejoicing. Solos were sung by Mrs. H. Young and a duet by Mrs. Young and Mrs. Hutchinson. The singing was hearty and very enjoyable, all entering into the spirit of the services with real joy. We have much to thank our minister for. The lives of our Killarney people are going to be enriched and blessed and we hope to periodically carry on these meetings in the future.

Rev. J. F. Minor Simpson, Fort St. John, B.C., formerly pastor of Westminster church, of this town, who is visiting this vicinity, gave out the following statement, Monday morning. "At the invitation of Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, your pastor, I accompanied him to Killarney yesterday afternoon to assist him with the communion service there. As I sat in the school with the congregation I could sense the fact that a great change spiritually had taken place. I could see it and feel it. Every one was stirred to the very depths.

"Accordingly it was no surprise to me to see 19 persons, young and old, come forward to unite with the church 15 on confession of faith, although the pastor had not previously informed me that such was going to be the case. It was the result of one week of special services held there by the pastor during the week.

"Those uniting by letter were: Thomas Armour, Sr., J. Semple, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chapman. Those upon profession of faith: Mr. and Mrs. Foreman and daughters, Jennie, Elsie and Dorothy; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Young and daughter, Jean; Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen; Mrs. E. B. Lang and daughter Francis; Miss Thea Armour, Messrs Andrew Armour and Thomas Armour, Jr.

"It was a great satisfaction to see so many uniting with the church, especially such a large proportion upon profession of faith. We rejoiced to hear that several had taken the same step in Edinglassie neighbourhood and hope to hear similar reports from other fields.

MOTORISTS WILL PETITION LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR FOR CHANGE IN LICENSE YEAR

Want Period to be From April 1 to March 31, Instead of Calendar System

DRAFT PLANS

Copies of Request to be Placed in 2,000 Garages, Service Stations, Stores

In an effort to have the Alberta government declare the Auto license year to be from April 1 to March 31, instead of from January 1 to December 31, as at present, the Alberta Motor Association will shortly send all over Alberta copies of a petition to be presented to Hon. W. L. Walsh Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta.

Decision to circulate the petition was made Wednesday afternoon by the board of directors of the association at the regular meeting, following attempts to bring the matter before the legislature.

Distribution

The petition will be placed in 2,000 garages, service stations and auto accessory stores throughout the province to be signed by auto owners.

J. W. Bawden, provincial secretary told the meeting that the Alberta Motor Association was right behind the move, and he expected that practically every car owner in the province would sign the petition. When it is thought that the petition has been thoroughly circulated, and the maximum number of names possible acquired, it will be presented to the Lieutenant-Governor.

A delegation of prominent motor association officials will present the petition. Circulation of the petition and copies will start Monday morning. "Far more cars will be in operation throughout the year if the date for securing license plates is set back until April 1," officials said in a statement issued following the meeting.

"Usually early in the new year, the motorist is unable to secure his license and waits until spring returns before bringing out his car. During the interval, the car has been idle, representing a loss to all oil and gasoline dealers, auto garages and service stations, and to the community as a whole," the statement says.

More In Use

"If, however, he need not secure his license until the first day of April, he may run his car throughout the winter. This means that the months of January, February and March would see as many cars in use as do June, July and other summer months.

"There, too, the government need not reduce price of licenses as they did last year, a decrease which caused much confusion. With a new license year starting on April 1, the motoring public and the community would jointly benefit."

The petition reads as follows:

"To His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Alberta in Council:

"The petition of the undersigned humbly sheweth:

"That the annual license fee for motor vehicles becomes due and payable on the 1st day of January of each year.

"That there are many inducements for owners to cease operating motor vehicles and avoid the necessity of disbursing license fees at the time, resulting in loss of revenue from the gasoline tax, loss of business to those servicing motor vehicles and inconvenience to owners, all of which could be avoided and overcome by the alteration of the license year, so that licenses become payable on April 1 each year in lieu of January 1.

"Wherefore, your petitioners humbly pray that Your Honor may be pleased to alter the license year from January 1 to April 1 in each year.

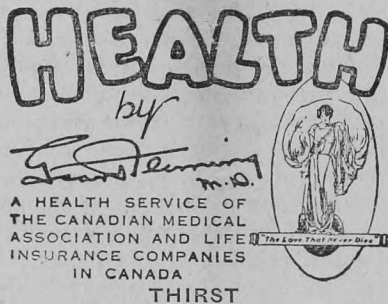

"And, as in duty bound, your petitioners will ever pray

Dated this 25th day of October 1933

THIRST

"What's worse than drink?" asked the temperance lecturer. "Thirst," was the feeling reply from one member of his audience. No doubt this listener's throat had become dry and so he longed for a cool drink, he was thirsty.

This sensation which we call thirst is a signal that the body is in need of more fluid. The secretion of saliva decreases in sympathy with a general loss of body fluids; the throat is not lubricated; there is a feeling of dryness, and we say that we are thirsty.

For a time, this sensation may be overcome by chewing anything which causes an increase in the flow of saliva. This does not, of course, relieve thirst, but it does, for a time, overcome the sensation of dryness of the throat arising from thirst. The demand for fluid should be heeded when it makes itself felt, because at this time, the body really needs more fluid in order to perform its functions properly.

The best and most simple way to quench thirst and to provide the body with the fluids it requires is by drinking water. It is unwise to drink quickly large amounts of cold water. Cold water should be sipped; this allows for its pleasant coolness to be felt in the throat and avoids chilling of the stomach.

What the individual drinks is largely a matter of habit, and if the individual prefers to add something to the water, there is no objection, provided the material added is harmless, or better still, if the added material is something of value, such as fresh fruit juice. We have, on more than one occasion, referred to the value of fruits in the diet. The use of fresh fruit beverages supplies not only a pleasant way of quenching thirst, but also of securing minerals and vitamins in abundance.

It is generally agreed that most people do not use enough water, and that many would enjoy better health if they did use more water. No one can lay down rules for the quantity of water each individual should drink, because weather and the degree of physical activity play a large part in this. We suggest a glass or two of water upon rising and between meals, as the average requirements, this is to be supplemented in warm weather and following physical activities.

CARD PARTY IS SUCCESSFUL EVENT

The card party which was held in the basement of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Chauvin on Sunday, October 29th, proved to be one of the most successful to be held in years. The basement was overcrowded with people from town and country.

During the evening a program was run off which proved to be very interesting, and received much applause. Among the items on this program were:

Song by the girls of the S.S.; Song by R. F. Binet, Piano duet by L. and A. Girard; Step dance by Yvonne Cyr; Song by Mr. R. Wiart; Step dance and song by Doris and Fay Cote; Song by Mamie Cubitt accompanied by Mrs. Girard; Song by Lucien Sevigny; Song by the three Misses Girard, accompanied by Mrs. Girard. The winners of the whist prizes were as follows: Ladies, 1st Mrs. Wilfred Cote, 2nd Mrs. Rene Belanger; 3rd Mrs. Thomas Cote, 4th Catherine Simard; Booby Mrs. Y. Rousson.

Gents: 1st Alcide Cote; 2nd John Courchesne, 3rd Alfred Cote, Booby, G. Boyer.

A tea set given by Mrs. Boyer was raffled off and was won by Henry Benoit.

The ladies of the Altar and Parish wish to thank all those who were present and the ones who helped toward the program. A net profit of $84.45 was left clear for the Church and Convent.

If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies
In Flanders' Fields.

The poppy has become the symbol of sacrifice in the Great War. The wearing of the poppy on Armistice day serves as a reminder of what the war meant. It is fitting that there should be such a symbol to call to remembrance the sacrifices and heroisms of those tragic days. The ancient Hebrews set up stones to mark the scenes of Jehovah's deliverance so that the curiosity of future questions concerning their meaning. In this way the stories of the great events in the great events in the life of the nation were handed down from generation to generation.

Today we have with us a generation of young people to whom the great war is but a dim memory of childhood. They do not realize its tragedy and its glory. Every means possible should be used to impress that tragedy and glory on their imagination. It is only in this way that we can avoid a repetition of war. It is only by doing that the coming generation will realize that war is too costly a way of settling differences between nations.

We must not allow the memory of that sacrifice to perish. To us as a nation that sacrifice meant the finding of the natives warning of its approach."

of our soul. A nation that can make such a sacrifice in a great cause need never fear for its future. It has within it the moral quality which will rise to great occasions. The youth of today should be led to have this continually in remembrance.

In wearing the poppy, and in guarding its privileges we are keeping in remembrance the sacrifice of Canadian manhood, and womanhood in the great war and keep to pass on the memory of that war to future generations. We also provide work in the manufacture of the poppy for disabled ex-service men who are unfit for any other kind of work.

Let us then guard our privilege, and in doing so realize that we are doing something to perpetuate the memory of those who sleep in Flanders' fields, and at the same time are helping to bring cheer and hope to many who, while they did not make the supreme sacrifice, are broken in body and need our help and protection.

LATE BLIGHT OF POTATO

Late blight in potatoes is caused by a microscopically minute parasite fungus which spends the winter in a semi-dormant stage within infected tubers. Late blight is unquestionably the most widely spread, and often times the most destructive disease affecting the potato. It is capable of destroying with remarkable rapidity the entire growth of the potato plant and also causing a very prominent tuber rot. It occurs in practically all potato growing sections of the world, and, under favorable circumstances has caused serious losses. Its control is fully discussed in a bulletin issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

PAUL IN MACEDONIA

Lesson VII November 12 1933
Lesson Acts 15: 36 to 17: 15.

HISTORICAL SETTING

Time A.D. 52 Place Phillippi in Macedonia.

The first missionary journey of Paul began at Antioch in Syria and took him through Asia Minor and back again to Antioch. (Acts 13 and 14.) The second journey took him through Asia Minor and on over into Europe. The record of this second journey begins with the 36th verse of the 15th Chapter of the Acts. We note that this second journey had a very unhappy beginning. It began with the separation of Paul and Barnabas the two honoured servants of the Lord who had laboured so happily together in the Gospel for several years, and whose joint and mutual labours the Lord had so graciously owned and blessed, so that so many souls had been saved and churches had been established in different places throughout Asia Minor. Barnabas insisted that they take John Mark with them, but Paul thought it not wise to do so because Mark had deserted them on their first missionary journey, leaving them at Pamphylia and refused to support them in the work. The contention became so heated and sharp that Paul and Barnabas separated. Barnabas took Mark and sailed to Cyprus. This break of fellowship in service for the Lord was the subtle work of the enemy of Christ and the Gospel. This break, however was not permanent because Paul mentions Barnabas again in Cor: 9 and 6 and of Mark's restoration and Paul's love for him we read in Col. 4: 10 and II Timothy 4: 11. At the separation of Paul and Barnabas, Paul chose Silas as his companion in the work of the second missionary journey. The brethren heartily agreed with Paul in his choice and commended Paul to the grace of God.

Paul and Silas went through Syria and Cilicia confirming the churches and teaching in a fuller measure the word of the Lord. After this he visited some of the places he had established on his first journey namely Derbe and Lystra, here he found a young disciple named Timotheus. His mother was a Jewess and his father was a Greek, evidently his mother was a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. Timotheus had an excellent report by the brethren at Lystra and Iconium. The Holy Spirit moved Paul to take him along, Paul had Timotheus circumcised because he did not wish to place a stumbling block in the way of the Jews. Then the Apostolic company consisting of Paul, Silas and Timothy went through the cities making known what the elders had agreed upon in the Council at Jerusalem concerning the relations of believing Gentiles and Jews. The blessed result was that the churches were strengthened and increased in numbers daily.

If you will read the lesson verses carefully, and then read them again prayerfully you will see that this is a wonderful lesson and contains some wonderful information. In verse 6 of chapter 16: In Paul's vision he sees a man of Macedonia pleading for help. learning that the Lord was anxious that the Gospel be preached there they started out, in verse 14 they met a business woman named Lydia, whose conversion was genuine, so that she opened her house to these men of God. Then these preachers were cast into prison and at midnight Paul and Silas prayed and sang praises, and suddenly there was an earthquake so that the foundations of the prison were shaken and every one's bonds were loosed and the prison keeper would have killed himself with his sword. But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, do thyself no harm, result, the conversion of the jailor, his question was, What must I do to be saved. Answer, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved. Now I want to prove that God knows just where you live, and what you are doing. Taking the case of Lydia for example. In this incident every detail is recorded with minute accuracy, because it shows the wonderful working of the Lord in the most simplicity. 1st we are informed of Lydia's trade, a seller of purple. 2nd we are told where Lydia came from, she was of the city Thyatira which is a city in the province of Asia. Lydia therefore came from the very city where Paul had desired to go and preach the Gospel but was forbidden of the Holy Spirit to do so (Verse 6) Thyatira was famous for its dye works, here Lydia got the goods she sold. 3rd we are given to understand that Lydia was a proselyte to the Jewish religion, therefore a Jewish proselyte, but she knew nothing about salvation in and through the Lord Jesus. 4th we are informed of her conversation, to Faith in Christ. The Lord opened her heart so that the word spoken by Paul found an entrance. It will therefore be noted that the heart of man by nature is closed to the Gospel and to Spiritual verities. The opening of the heart of man to the truth of God demands a Divine and supernatural from its inception to its final completion.

Paul told Lydia the story of the Lord Jesus Christ; how that He had come into the world and had been rejected, and crucified, and how God had raised him from the dead and exalted Him to his own right hand in the Glory, and how, through faith in Him sinful creatures are justified from all sin.

She heard the word of the Lord which precedes faith and Salvation. Faith, says the Apostle cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God (Romans 10-17) This is God's way in salvation 1 Cor: 1-21; Eph: 1-12.

It is the duty of God's people to proclaim the word of the Lord far and wide to mankind, so that the Lord may operate in power through it, and souls may be brought to faith in Christ and to salvation.

In conclusion, consider the blessing we may all receive. The jailor to whom we have referred was a heathen when the sun set the night of the earthquake, and a Christian, a believer, a follower of Jesus when the sun rose the following morning.

Long Lake Ripples

The annual bazaar and supper prov- ed to be a huge success for Long Lake. A good crowd attended from surrouding districts, also Evesham, Macklin, North End, and Herbark. The ladies wish to take this oppor- tunity in expressing their apprecia- tion for the splendid response given by all.

Dr. Erd, Messers Mitchel and Hay- ward spent part of the day at hunt- ing in the district and topped off nice- ly by taking supper at the Long Lake Hall.

The gigantic sale of A. Scharb in Wilkie last Thursday turned out to be quite a huge flop, as far as reports go. Not half the crowd were even permitted to see the insido of the store.

On Thursday evening last Miss Ouitler Cornish, Messrs H. Beggs, V. Cornish and N. Harper, attended the Annual supper and bazaar at Rib- stone. A real enjoyable evening was spent by all after which the party ac- cepted the kindly invitation to spend the night with the Burton's. The re- turn trip was made Friday afternoon

Mr. and Mrs. John Cornish, former

Have you any musical instruments that are tired of their usual routine? If so just march them over to little Johnnie Saverty for a proper going over. It is stated that he passed in- spection on the accordion belonging to Albert Curtis last week, and what did Johnnie do but take an axe and the thing half in two just to see what made the works go round. Sounds like a smash in rates, doesn't it!

Mr. Edwin Chase and son Floyd have again returned to their home after taking in a nice run of thresh- ing up near Vermilion.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bates, newly- weds returned to their home at Senlac on Monday, October 30, in the after- noon. They brought with them much happiness and numerous gifts con- tributed by their many relatives and friends. May joy and prosperity at- tend their pathway through life.

A pleasant Hallowe'en party was staged last Friday at the school, for the children and mothers of the dis- trict. Miss E. Newman, teacher at Long Lake School, conducted the party. The program was followed by a tasty lunch served by four of the older girls of the school. Among the ladies of the district who attended was also Mrs. Frank Newman of Sen- lac. The party was enjoyed by all.

Snow fell real heavy last Tuesday night in the district, and by the fol- lowing morning, a depth of about six inches had fallen. In spite of the sudden depth, cars are pushing their way so roads will be quite passable in a day or so.

On Wednesday last, Mr. E. Kinnee drove to Unity by car, accompanied by Miss Doris Harper and Mr. George Kinnee, who were going to have some dental work done while in town.

Bloomington

The Whist Drive that was held in the hall on Wednesday November 1st was a great success and attended by a fair crowd. The prizes were won by Muriel Warrington 1st, Velma Cooke, 2nd, Booby, Mrs. Golding, Gents 1st George Buchanan, 2nd Al- lan Warrington, Booby Alf Challeng- er. After the prizes were given, a new committee was elected as the others resigned. The new committee consists of Mary Rusnell, Mr. I. T. Noble, and G. Buchanan. Supper was then served. After supper Mr. Bain- bridge presented Frank Creasy, who is leaving for the Old Country, with a fountain pen and pencil. Dancing then commenced with Harry Johnson and Jimmy Miles supplying the music. Everyone went home after a very good time, but all were sorry to miss one of their crowd.

Frank Creasy left Edgerton Mon- day night, November 6th. He intends stopping off in Hamilton for a week to visit his brother, and then will sail from Montreal on the 16th. All his friends wish him a safe journey home and a pleasant one.

Miss Ellen Price visited the Rus- nell home last week end. And I be- lieve accompanied them to Prospect. Fowl supper etc. on Friday evening.

Frank Creasy spent Saturday even- ing at the home of Mrs. Hill.

"You appear to be a perfect secret service to yourself, Prince," he remarked smoothly. "Perhaps you can also tell us our reply?"

"I can tell you this much," the Prince answered, smiling. "You did not send back word to Washington that your alliance was a sacred charge upon your honor and that its terms must be fulfilled to the uttermost letter. Your reply I fancy, was more in the nature of a compromise."

"How do you know what our reply was?" Mr. Haviland asked.

"To tell you the truth, I do not," the Prince answered, smiling. "I have simply told you what I am assured your answer must have been. Let us leave this matter. We gain nothing by discussing it."

"You have been very candid with us Prince," Mr. Haviland remarked. "We gather that you are opposed to a renewal of our alliance chiefly for two reasons. First, that you have formed an unfavorable opinion of our resources and capacity as a nation. And, secondly, because you are seeking an ally who would be of service to you in one particular eventuality—namely, a war with the United States. You have spent some time upon the continent. May I enquire whether your present attitude is the result of advances made to you by any other power? If I am asking too much, leave my question unanswered."

The Prince shook his head slowly. "To-night," he said, "I am speaking to you as one who is willing to show everything that is in his heart. I will tell you, then, I have been to Germany, and I can assure you, of my own knowledge that Germany possesses the mightiest fighting machine ever known in the world's history. That I do truthfully and honestly believe. Yet listen to me. I have talked to the men and I have talked to the officers. I have seen them in barracks and on the parade ground, and I tell you this. When the time arrives for the machine to be set in motion, it is my profound conviction that the result will be one of the greatest surprises of modern times. I say no more, and you must not ask me questions, but I tell you that we do not need Germany as an ally. I have been to Russia, and though our hands have crossed there can be no real friendship between our countries till time has wiped out the memory of our recent conflict. France hates us because it does not understand us. The future of Japas is just as clear at the fate which hangs over Great Britain. There is only one possible ally for us—only one possible combination. That is what I have written home to my cousin the Emperor. That is what I pray that our young professors will teach throughout Japan. That is what it will be my mission to teach my countrypeople, if the Fates will that I return safely home. East and West are too far apart. We are well outside the coming European struggle. Our strength will come to us from nearer home."

"China!" the Prime Minister exclaimed.

"The China of our own making," the Prince declared, a note of tense enthusiasm creeping into his tone — "China re-created after its great lapse of a thousand years. You and I in our lifetime shall not see it, but there will come a day when the ancient conquests of Greece and Persia and Rome will seem as nothing before the all-conquering armies of China and Japan. Until those days we need no allies. We will have none. We must accept the insults of America and the rough hand of Germany. We must be strong enough to wait."

A footman entered the room and made his way to the Duke's chair.

"Your grace," he said, "a gentleman is ringing up from Downing Street who says he is speaking from the Home Office."

"Whom does he want?" the Duke asked.

"Both your Grace and Mr. Haviland," the man replied. "He wished me to say that the matter was of utmost importance."

The Duke rose at once and glanced at the clock.

"It is an extraordinary hour," he remarked, "for Heseltine to be wanting us. Shall we go and see what it means Haviland? You will excuse us, Prince?"

The Prince bowed.

"I think we have talked enough of serious things to-night," he said. "I shall challenge Sir Edward to a game of billiards."

CHAPTER XXXIII

The Prince, still fully attired, save that in place of his dress coat he wore a loose smoking-jacket, stood at the windows of his sitting room at Devenham Castle, looking across the park. In the somewhat fitful moonlight the trees has taken to themselves grotesque shapes. Away in the distance the glimmer of the sea shore like a thin belt of quicksilver. The stable clock had struck two. The whole place seemed at rest. Only one light was gleaming from a long, low building which had been added to the coach-houses of recent years as a garage. That one light, the Prince knew, was on his account. There his chauffeur waited, untiring and sleepless, with his car always ready, for that last rush to the coast, the advisability of which the Prince had considered more than once during the last twenty-four hours. The excitement of the evening, the excitement of his unwonted outburst, was still troubling him. It was not often that he had so far outstepped the bounds which his natural caution, his ever-present self-restraint imposed on him. He paced restlessly to and fro, from the sitting room to the bedroom and back again. He had told the truth, the bare, simple truth. He had seen the letters of fire in the sky, and he had read them to this people because of their kindness, because of a certain affection he bore them. To them it must have sounded like a man speaking in a strange tongue. They had not understood. Perhaps, even, they would not believe in the absolute sincerity of his motives. Again he paused at the window and looked over the park to that narrow, glittering stretch of sea. Why should he not for once forget the traditions of his race, the pride which kept him there to face the end! There was still time. The cruiser which the Emperor had sent was waiting for him in Southampton Harbour. In twentyfour hours he would be in foreign waters. He thought of these earnestly, even wistfully, and yet he knew that he could not go. Perhaps they would be glad of an opportunity of getting rid of him now that he had spoken his mind. In any case, right was on their side. The end, if it must come, was simple enough.

He turned away from the window with a faint shrug of the shoulders. Even as he did so, there came a faint knocking at the door. His servant had already retired. For a moment it seemed to him that it could mean but one thing. While he hesitated, the handle was softly turned and the door opened. To his amazement, it was Penelope who stood upon the threshold.

"Miss Morsel!" he exclaimed breathlessly.

She held out her hand as though to bid him remain silent. For several seconds she seemed to be listening. Then very softly she closed the door behind her.

"Miss Penelope," he cried softly, "you must not come in here! Please!"

She ignored his outstretched hand advancing a little farther into the room. There was tragedy in her white face. She seemed to be shaking in every limb, but not with nervousness. Directly he looked into her eyes, he knew very well that the thing was close at hand!

"Listen!" she whispered. "I had to come! You don't know what is going on! For the last half-hour the telephone has been ringing continuously. It is about you! The Home Office has been ringing up to speak to the Prime

Pelican News

The first Whist Drive of the season was held in Pelican School on Saturday evening. There being a large crowd present, and everyone enjoying a pleasant evening. The prizes were awarded to the following ladies 1st Evelyn Heard, 2nd Nettie Leskow, Booby Mrs. Paul Balick. Gents 1st Jerry Belanger, 2nd George Treachy, Booby Joe Belanger.

Mr. Wm. Moore is drilling a well for Mr. Gordon Newell.

Mrs. Harry Wilkinson was a visitor at the Ernie Griffith home Friday afternoon.

Miss Kluck spent the week end visiting friends in Edgerton.

Mr. Tom Thorp went to Edgerton on Monday to start operations of moving the house he purchased to his farm in this district.

A whist drive and dance will be held in aid of the Christmas Tree, on Friday November 24th in Pelican school. Come one and don't wait for a call.

Several from this district journeyed to the North Country last week to hunt moose, wish them good luck.

Mr. T. Thorpe and family motored to Edmonton last week.

Mr. Henry Spencer M.P. gave a very good address in Pelican school on Thursday evening on Unemployment and World Marketing.

Mrs. M. Kelly has been confined to the house for the past week with a very sore eye.

Miss Velma Cooke of Bloomington is staying with Mrs. Aussen while Mr. Aussen is away hunting in the north country.

Marsden Notes

J. A. Proctor had the misfortune to break his wrist while cranking a truck last Friday evening. The injury was very painful and he was taken immediately to Lashburn hospital where he received treatment.

The skating rink well is now undergoing improvements in order to be ready for the flooding of the rink which is expected to start soon. It is hoped that Mr. Hallett's services will again be acquired for the coming season.

The Ladies Community Hall Club held a whist drive recently to raise funds for the new hall. A good time was enjoyed by all and a nice little sum was added to the building fund. We understand that the ladies expect to put these on regularly during the coming winter, and we are looking forward to the next one.

The Boy's Hockey team have been busy raising funds for uniforms. They also staged a whist drive, which was held on Friday last in the school. A very good crowd turned out and enjoyed the evening. The prizes were as follows: Turkey. Gents 2nd "2" Gents. 1st. George Rutherford, a Turkey. Gents 2nd Ladies 1st, Miss Newman, set of dishes. Ladies 2nd, Mrs. Mahoney, Cake.

The prizes won by Mrs. Mahoney and Mr. Rutherford were turned back to be raffled off, and further added to the enjoyment and profit of the evening.

Many a husband, knowing nothing about music, learns he can produce real harmony in the home by playing second fiddle.

Edgerton News

Members of the Curling Club held a meeting in the bank on Friday night. Quite a large crowd were in attendance. Roy Hallet is preparing the ice. We also hear that the skating rink will soon be underway. The local Badminton Club was visited by two players from Provost, who seemed to be undefeated.

Mr. Meade, our former school teacher, was a visitor the week end.

Mel Ford was also a visitor to Jessie

Don't forget the big novelty dance in Pawsey's Hall on Friday, November 10. A place where a good time is assured. Everybody welcome.

Mr. Pawsey and a few of the business men held a party in the hall for the little people. Hot-dogs, ice-cream, apples and cakes were passed around. The children sure had a good time.

We see that Mr. Bullymore has had an electric light installed in his livery barn.

Norm and Jim are still busy hauling wheat from the north.

A large crowd of dancers went to a dance at Rosemoyne last Friday.

Mr. White is building up a good business in his shop.

Rudy Valentine is living in town these days. No wonder, he has something to stay for.

Roy has been looking blue—somebody has gone away.

I SAW Stuart Dinsmore, his wife and son out walking on Sunday.

Aubrey Blair carrying water from the town well.

Mel and Greta out in the old Ford the other day.

Harvey Spornitz working on Iva's dray.

Miss Erica Bonner is working at the home of Mrs. Bullymore.

If you want a thrilling picture be sure to see "Midnight Club" starring George Raft and Clive Brook, in Pawsey's Hall on November 11th. Afternoon and evening show. Three reel comedy also.

Mrs. Stratton's name was accidentally omitted from the list of performers in "Not a man in the House" which was one of the items on the program of the Concert given by St. Mary's W. A. at Edgerton recently, the report of which was published in last week's issue.

Ripples From Rosemoyne

Mr. Cecil Tennant and Mr. Bert Covert made a trip to Butze and back last week.

Mr. Castle was a visitor to Wainwright Friday.

Mr. R. H. Pawsey went to Edmonton Wednesday last, returning home again Saturday, his visit was to secure medical attention to one of his eyes. We hope that he will soon be O.K. again.

Mr. Ed. Burreton is now driving Mr. Rob Tennants truck, hauling grain.

The threshermen's dance held in the hall on Friday night, went over with a bang. The hall was crowded to capacity. An excellent supper was served, thanks to the ladies. The Jim Mix orchestra supplied the music.

Mr. Allan Tennant and Mr. Leonard Hanter called at the Brunswick home on Sunday.

Miss Gully, school teacher spent the week end with her sister in Edgerton.

Miss Nora Milne of Edgerton was a visitor in the district Sunday.

We are sorry to report the indisposition of Rudolph Mix, who is suffering with a severe tooth ache.

Greenglade

The Watson family made a trip to Olds and points in Alberta last week, tagging George to that point for the coming term in the Agricultural school. They report that the only place on the trip where more snow was in evidence was at Olds, and at that point snow plows were in operation.

While on their trip Mr. and Mrs. Watson and family visited with friends and relatives at Millett, Olds, Stettler and other points, looking up Mil. Parcels at Lacombe.

Previous to leaving a number of the young people of the district gave George a surprise party.

Mr. Taylor, U.F.A. organizer paid a visit to the Greenglade district last week, and made an effort to have the old U.F.A. organization of that district revived. However, insufficient notice was given of the meeting and the attendance was a little disappointing. It is hoped that further efforts will be made at a later date.

Leo Perry, who has been in Calgary for some time, had some rather spectacular shooting luck when visiting with Mr. Grey here last week. Mr. Perry created what might be a world's record when he brought down five geese with one shot. He knows his goose shooting.

ARMISTICE SERVICES AT EDGERTON NOVEMBER 11th

Joint Armistice Services are being held in Edgerton at 10.45 on Saturday morning November 11th. Rev. G. W. Wilson will give an inspiring address to the memory of those who sacrificed so much for our country's freedom. Special music will be provided. All are invited to attend this service which is the first of its kind to be held in Edgerton for many years.

Diplomacy is the art of letting someone else have your way.

to a happy conclusion with the comedy "A Pair of Sixes". This is a story that all appreciate and its ridiculous situations provide an evening of fun and mirth. No "Potash and Perlmutter"
